

Speak Better. Communicate Better. Live Better.

A 3-month practical English communication course by DQ Learnings — designed not to teach grammar rules, but to help you actually speak English in real situations.

3 MONTHS

SPEAKING · LISTENING · PRONUNCIATION · VOCABULARY · GRAMMAR

Course Snapshot

What Is This Course?

The English Speaking Course by DQ Learnings is a communication-first programme built around the situations in which you actually need English — not textbook exercises. From introducing yourself to handling interviews, from workplace conversations to group discussions, every session is designed around speaking and doing.

3 Months

Structured, progressive learning journey

Practice-Led

Interactive speaking, not passive listening

5 Core Skills

Speaking, Listening, Pronunciation, Vocabulary, Grammar

Real Contexts

Everyday, social, academic, interview and workplace

The Core Goal

Move from knowing English rules to using English to communicate.

Knowing vocabulary is not the same as communicating. A learner may understand English but still hesitate, translate mentally, struggle to form sentences quickly, or feel uncomfortable speaking in front of others. This course bridges that gap — through practice, feedback and repetition.

Communication Is the Real Skill

What Most Learners Experience

- Understand English but hesitate to speak
- Translate mentally before responding
- Give short, one-word answers
- Avoid conversations or group settings
- Feel anxious about pronunciation or mistakes

What This Course Builds

- Speak with less hesitation and greater flow
- Express complete, understandable thoughts
- Listen for meaning, not word-by-word translation
- Use vocabulary naturally in context
- Participate confidently in conversations and groups

- ❑ A communication-focused course requires repeated opportunities to speak, listen, ask, explain, clarify and receive feedback — not just grammar instruction.

The DQ Communication Model

Every session follows a simple, powerful progression that mirrors how real communication actually works — from understanding a situation to improving on your last attempt.

Grammar, vocabulary and pronunciation are not the destination — they are tools that support the real goal: communication itself.

Who Is This Course For?

Designed for learners who want practical spoken-English confidence — not just textbook knowledge.

Students & Graduates

Participate more confidently in class, seminars and academic settings. Prepare for college life and professional interviews.

Job Seekers

Communicate clearly in interviews, answer questions with structure and make a strong professional impression.

Working Professionals

Improve everyday workplace communication — meetings, updates, emails and conversations with colleagues and clients.

Hesitant Speakers

Understand some English but struggle to speak spontaneously? This course provides the structure and practice you need.

Your Three-Month Communication Journey

The course is structured as a progressive journey — moving from foundational language practice to increasingly independent, confident communication.

Foundation

Everyday vocabulary, sentence patterns, basic grammar and pronunciation awareness

Conversation

Introductions, routines, questions, answers, everyday topics and listening practice

Confidence

Longer responses, descriptions, opinions, role plays and extempore speaking

Interaction

Group discussion, clarification, agreement, disagreement and problem-solving conversations

Professional Communication

Interviews, workplace conversations, presentations, meetings and professional digital communication

Core Skills — What You Will Practise

Speaking

From controlled responses to spontaneous conversation — self-introductions, opinions, descriptions, storytelling and structured presentations.

Listening

Understanding questions, instructions and everyday conversation at natural speed. Using context to infer meaning and asking for clarification confidently.

Pronunciation

Word stress, sentence stress, intonation and connected speech. The goal is intelligibility — being clearly understood — not a perfect accent.

Vocabulary

Taught through real situations — everyday, workplace, travel and social contexts. A useful word is one you can recognise, understand and use in a sentence.

Grammar

Accurate sentence structure makes communication clearer. Grammar is taught through meaningful speaking tasks, not as an isolated theory subject.

Interview & Workplace Communication

English communication becomes especially important when you need to introduce yourself, explain your experience, or answer questions under pressure.

Interview Communication

- Self-introduction for interviews
- Talking about education and experience
- Answering common interview questions
- Describing goals and career plans
- Asking appropriate questions to the interviewer
- Mock interview practice with feedback

Workplace Communication

- Describing your role and responsibilities
- Making arrangements and giving updates
- Explaining a problem and suggesting a solution
- Participating in meetings and discussions
- Speaking with clients and colleagues professionally
- Basic professional email communication

Conversation, Group Discussion & Presentation Skills

Moving from individual sentences to real interaction is where language becomes communication. These three practice areas are central to the course.

Conversation Skills

- Starting, continuing and closing conversations
- Asking open and closed questions
- Agreeing, disagreeing and making suggestions politely
- Clarifying and responding to requests

Group Discussion

- Entering a discussion and giving your opinion
- Supporting a point with reasons or examples
- Interrupting politely and building on others' ideas
- Summarising and reaching agreement

Presentation Skills

- Opening and structuring a short presentation
- Using signposting language to guide the listener
- Managing pace, voice and body language
- Answering questions and closing confidently

❑ The learner should speak repeatedly. One long trainer explanation cannot replace multiple learner speaking attempts.

Extempore & Role-Play — Think, Speak, Do

Extempore Speaking

Real conversations rarely give you time to prepare a perfect answer. Extempore practice builds the ability to think and speak simultaneously.

- One-minute speaking tasks on familiar topics
- Describe a picture or situation
- Give an opinion with reasons
- Explain a simple process or compare two choices
- Respond to unexpected questions without a script

Role-Play Scenarios

- Student and teacher conversation
- Job seeker and interviewer
- Customer and service representative
- Employee and manager
- Two colleagues planning a task
- Traveller asking for directions
- Group discussion on a current topic
- Short presentation followed by questions

Role-play creates a safe environment to practise situations before you face them in real life. Mistakes here become confidence later.

Everyday & Digital Communication

Everyday & Social English

- Talking to new people and making social introductions
- Shopping, travel and asking for directions
- Making plans, expressing preferences and polite requests
- Describing experiences and talking about hobbies
- Handling common everyday situations comfortably

Digital Communication

- Writing short professional messages and emails
- Clear email structure, subject lines and follow-ups
- Requesting information and confirming arrangements
- Participating in online meetings professionally
- Polite, professional digital language — avoiding overly informal tone

Feedback — The Engine of Improvement

Speaking improves faster when learners know exactly what to change. Feedback in this course is specific, respectful and actionable — not generic or discouraging.

Fluency

Can the learner keep the message moving without long pauses?

Clarity

Can the listener understand the message without difficulty?

Pronunciation

Which sounds or stress patterns need attention?

Vocabulary

Is the learner using useful, appropriate and varied words?

Grammar

Which recurring errors affect communication clarity?

Confidence

Is the learner willing to speak and recover from mistakes?

From Hesitation to Communication

The transformation this course aims to deliver is practical, not magical. With consistent practice, feedback and repetition, real change is achievable over three months.

Where You Start

- Translating every sentence mentally
- Avoiding conversations and group settings
- Short, one-word answers
- Fear of making mistakes
- Unclear speech and interview anxiety

Where You Are Heading

- Using familiar sentence patterns more naturally
- Starting and continuing simple conversations
- Clearer, complete and confident responses
- Willingness to speak and self-correct
- Structured interview practice and workplace readiness

📌 Honest positioning: Three months can create a strong foundation when you practise consistently. Long-term fluency develops through continued use — no course can promise instant results.
